Harry has decided to go and see his mother, who lives at Orange, state of New York, and Saturday night's flyer will carry all that is mortal or otherwise of the deputy treasurer toward the scenes of his childhood haif a century ago.

Harry intended to go away quietly, but the boys wouldn't have it. His centemplated departure leaked out and no sooner had it been made known among his fellow employees than a conspiracy was hatched. It materialized in the shape of a sing party and the conspirators in the stillness of last evening's twilight, took possession of Harry's place of abode, 317 East Fifth South street, and depositing their ammunition, proceeded to make themselves at home, entertaining the guest of honor with speeches, songe, etc.

The members of the party were: Dave Hempstead, Archie McKay, W. H. Chark, George Olsen, J. L. May, Percy Perkins and W. H. Munson.
